

Media Contact: Charlie Moore
Charlie.Moore@state.nm.us
(505) 670-5406

May 26, 2022

New Mexicans in disaster areas have until August 31 to file taxes
Extension for business and income taxes available in five counties

SANTA FE—Residents in five New Mexico counties declared federal disaster areas have until August 31, 2022, to file their 2021 personal or corporate income tax returns and estimated tax payments under extensions granted by the state and federal governments.

Taxpayers required to file under New Mexico business tax programs, including gross receipts, compensating and withholding tax, oil and gas taxes, combined fuel tax, and other excise taxes with due dates that fall between May 25, 2022 and August 25, 2022 also qualify for an extended filing due date of August 25, 2022.

Colfax, Lincoln, Mora, San Miguel and Valencia counties are covered under the extensions. Taxpayers covered under the extensions include those who live within the disaster areas and those whose principal places of business are in the areas, among others.

“State agencies are committed to easing the burden on New Mexicans impacted by recent wildfires,” said Taxation and Revenue Secretary Stephanie Schardin Clarke. “These extended tax deadlines will allow evacuees time to return to their homes and businesses without facing the added pressure of filing taxes.”

Under all the extensions, penalties and interest will not be incurred so long as returns are filed and taxes due are paid by the extended deadline.

More detail is available in Taxation and Revenue Bulletin 100.42, which can be found on the Forms & Publications page at tax.newmexico.gov.

###

The Taxation and Revenue Department serves the State of New Mexico by providing fair and efficient tax and motor vehicle services. It administers more than 35 tax programs and distributes revenue to the State and to local and tribal governments throughout New Mexico.

The Department strives to reduce taxpayer burden through clearer communication, statutes, regulations, forms, correspondence and instructions.

Connect with us on tax.newmexico.gov, LinkedIn, YouTube and Twitter @NM_MVD